Los Angeles, Sept. 12 (A.P.).—Rudolph Valentino, appearing in the gaudy uniform of a Russian Cossack officer, was fined $50 on a charge of speeding. The courtroom was thronged with middle-aged women.

The arresting officer testified that he "smelled liquor on the defendant's breath," but Valentino's attorneys objected, urging that the odor might have been garlic.

Pasadena, Cal., Sept. 12 (A. P.)—Accidental shattering of a mirror built to turn at 500 revolutions a second has caused postponement of the third of a series of experiments by Dr. A. A. Michelson to determine the velocity of light.

The University of Chicago physicist today is en route to the East. Two of his experiments resulted favorably, he said. He will return to Mount Wilson next May to resume investigations.

$25,000 IN GOLD WILL BE SHARED AMONG READERS

"Game of War Heroes" Begins Today in This Paper; Lasts 12 Weeks

THERE ARE 3,161 AWARDS

First Prize Is $2,500, Second $1,000, Third $500; Even Children Can Play

Every reader of the Boston Sunday Advertiser is respectfully invited today to sit in upon a most fascinating patriotic and educational game, at the conclusion of which the 3,161 most successful players will be asked to divide $25,000 in cash!

Twenty-five Thousand Dollars in Gold, to be awarded to winners in the Boston Sunday Advertiser's/ "Game of War Heroes."

First prize, $2,500!
Second prize, $1,000!
Third prize, $500!

Other prizes of $250 and $150, five prizes of $50 each, fifty prizes of $25 each and 2,100 of lesser amounts!

The "Game of War Heroes" begins today. You will find the first problem, together with the necessary details and all the rules, on Page Five of the March of Events section.

The originator of this delightful game says fruit that it is one that even the children can play.

For 12 Weeks

On each Sunday for twelve consecutive weeks the Boston Sunday Advertiser will print three large pictures of American war heroes.

The "game" is to properly identify these pictures, each of which has been sliced in three. As printed in contest form, the pictures have been put together incorrectly, one man's forehead, another man's face, a third man's chin.

Put them together again, CORRECTLY. Write under each properly reassembled photograph the rank and full name of the hero. Tell, on another line, the war in which he distinguished himself.

And that, really, is all there is of the new $25,000 contest.

Take a look at the first three pictures as published today. The Boston Sunday Advertiser's contest editor misses his guess if there is a boy or girl in the upper grades of any grammar school in New England who—with the suggestions made on the War Heroes page, about somebody's "signature," the "cherry tree" and a foreign-born soldier whose first name was "Marie"—cannot supply the correct names in jig-time.

Game for Everybody

But while even the children may take part in this entertaining game, it is not intended for them, exclusively. Not by any means!

This is a game for everybody; for you, and you, and you, whether your age be 15 or 70, or any figure in between.

The rules, printed today with the pictures, cover the ground and leave no questions to be asked. Please study them carefully.

There is no entrance fee. It does not matter where you live, so long as the Boston Sunday Advertiser

Dawes Backs Wilson for U. S. Envoy in Japan

Washington, Sept. 12.

TREMENDOUS pressure is being brought upon President Coolidge to appoint Henry Lane Wilson of Indianapolis as American ambassador to Japan.

Unless the President heeds the insistence of the Pacific coast that the American representative in Tokio should be one from that section who is familiar with the Japanese attitude, Henry L. Wilson so far as it affects the Far West, Wilson has better than an even chance of appointment.

Outstanding among this former diplomat's backers are Vice President Dawes and United States Senator Watson, Republican of Indiana.

HUB NAVY YARD TO REMAIN OPEN

The Boston Navy Yard will not be closed, it was learned yesterday by U. S. Senator Butler, after a conference with Secretary Wilbur of the Navy. The senator declared Secretary Wilbur has given assurances that the final estimates for the Navy will contain an item providing for continuance of operations at the Boston Yard.

These estimates will be completed by Sept. 15, when they will be transmitted to the Bureau of the Budget.

It was explained by Secretary Wilbur that the preliminary estimate made by the Navy Department contained no appropriation for the Boston Yard, and this led to the report that work there was to be indefinitely suspended.

GENERAL CALLS LACK OF PLANES 'CRYING SHAME'

Tells 5,000 Legionnaires U. S. Can Fall Easy Prey to Foreign Enemy

SCORES DIRIGIBLE CRASH

Good, Cambridge Man, Elected New Leader of the Bay State Vets

Bitterly scoring America's aeronautical inefficiency, Gen. Clarence E. Edwards, former commander of the 26th Division and of the Bay State Legion, yesterday, before 5,000 war vets, declared that America does not deserve the respect of the world until she leads in aviation.

Without placing blame, Gen. Edwards designated America's position today among the air forces as "a crying shame," and said that the development of aviation in the land must be a service of devotion and not of business or politics.

"Every village in the country is a port," he said. "Every part of the country is easy prey to any foreign enemy as long as the country is unprotected by a great fleet of defensive aircraft."

Gen. Edwards

REAL NATIONAL PERIL.

The result of the World War, he continued, was a preferred combination of staff officers who have nearly become an oligarchy and have created an immense overhead expense that was eating into the resources of the nation.

"Confidence is the essence of the whole thing," he declared. "For forty-six years I have been a soldier and have known American officers, the finest class of men and the bravest soldiers in the world. The American officer's motto is 'Duty for Duty's Sake,' but without an adequate air force the confidence of the American soldier is shaken."

Discussing the Shenandoah catastrophe, the general said the accident could have been avoided if the great ship had been capable of five more nautical miles an hour.

"One engine had been taken off," he said, "and a radio substituted. Just before the storm one of the engines went dead. The ship had not sufficient power to weather the storm."

The navy should not be blamed, he said, but warned that perfection in air highways mean nothing more or less than the perfection of the element of safety.

General Edwards was one of the promoters of the Airways Corporation of America.

"In another two months we would

STANDS UP IN PLANE, FALLS TO DEATH IN POTATO PATCH

Roosevelt Field, L. I., Sept. 12.—Standing up to talk with his pilot, Al Johnson, civilian air pilot of Manhattan, failed to reckon with a "bump" in the air and the plane "rolled." Johnson was pitched 700 feet to his death in a potato patch here today.

Landing hard first, he was buried in the soft loam up to his shoulders. The body rebounded and fell several feet from the hole it had made.

Meyers, his pilot, landed safely at Roosevelt Field and returned to the spot where his friend lay, already dead. They had been distributing posters over Manhattan.

ROBERT DICKERMAN, who figured in a Boston love suit, was married yesterday in Maine to Miss Blanche Durand of Lynn.

DICKERMAN WEDS GIRL FROM LYNN

Richmond, Me., Sept. 12.—Inability to procure a clergyman to perform the marriage ceremony delayed the wedding of Robert Dickerman, Harvard graduate and ambulance driver in France during the World War, and his bride, Miss Blanche Durand, daughter of Edward E. Durand, a wealthy shoe manufacturer, an hour and a half here today.

Dickerman, whose name figured prominently in an alienation suit brought by his wife, the former Mrs. Eugenia E. Young, against his mother, in the East Cambridge, Mass. court, had to get a justice of the peace to perform the ceremony.

The ceremony, attended by only a few intimates of the Dickerman family, was performed at the home of Miss Durand. Dickerman is a Protestant, his bride a Roman Catholic. Miss Durand wore a black silk gown. She was attended by her sister, Ruth. Frank A. Long of Boston was best man.

Dickerman's gift to the bride was a diamond studded pendant. Her gift to the bridesmaid was a string of pearls. His gift to the best man was a watch charm.

The bride, graduate of a Lynn commercial college, met Dickerman in her father's shoe office, where he has been employed some time. Friends say it was love at first sight.

Dickerman is well known in and about Boston.

MYSTERY GIRL, SOLD HERE FOR $8000, LINKED WITH TRAGEDY

Assassin Escapes After Pumping Two Bullets Into Chin Cow One

HUDSON ST. IN UPROAR

Smoking Pistol Laid on Victim's Shoulders by Gunman

Tong fangs were bared in Chinatown yesterday as one man dropped under an assassin's bullets, a human sacrifice for some unknown infraction of the inexorable Tong laws, and hatred flared anew as a signed truce automatically ended.

Chin Cow One, Hip Sing member, flitting shadow of mystery in a land of mysterious shadows, was shot down by a fellow countryman in front of 15 Hudson st.

Why? By whom? Police as usual do not know, but the figure of a beautiful girl, the daughter of a mandarin and a Princess by birth, enters the mystery.

She is the girl whose name figures in a Mann act suit brought Friday in New York and who, it is alleged, was recently sold in Boston for $8,000.

"INFORMER," SAY POLICE.

Whether the slain man was instrumental in the arrest of the Chinese now held by Government authorities in New York in connection with the "sale" of the lovely girl here, police would not say, but ominous mutterings in the land of shadows, where nothing seems as it is, intimate that Chin Cow One's death might be traceable to the frustration of a traffic in human souls.

Edward Gong, Hip Sing leader, who is here from New York, promised police and newspapermen that he would make a statement of the whole affair.

Several detective sergeants believe the slain man was an informer and was killed because of his intimacy with police—and as a warning to those accused of leading raids a week ago against On Leong establishments.

Chin Cow One was a member of the Hip Sings. He was a close relative of a police "stool pigeon" who is said to have been helpful in the police raids of a week ago.

FEAR NEW WARS.

Police fear new Tong wars. Reserves have been rushed to all parts of Chinatown with orders to quell the disturbances at any cost.

Chin Cow One's slayer escaped. He was a young Chinaman, well dressed. He darted up an alley after firing two shots into the body of his victim and placing the smoking revolver on the dying man's shoulder. Chin Cow One died almost instantly.

It was a battle to the death, police say, between the On Leongs, whose stronghold for years has been in Boston, and the Hip Sings, driven out in 1908, and who are trying to again get a foothold here.

Reports have it that organizers have imported gunmen from New York and Chicago, and that the Hip Sings are determined to again become a strong factor in the life of the Hub's Chinatown.

On Leongs are equally determined that the Hip Sings will be driven out of the city.

DENIED A CHARTER.

Recently, the Hip Sings attempted

Coolidge Pledges Aid In Commercial Air Program

PLANES FOR U.S. IN THE EVENT OF WAR CRISIS

First Route to Be New York to Dallas by Way of Chicago

HAMMOND A STOCKHOLDER

Restriction in Stock Ownership to Prevent Individual Control

Washington, Sept. 12.—Plans for the operation of a great system of commercial air transportation over the United States, all facilities of which would immediately be turned over to the government in case of war, but which in peace would function as a paying business enterprise, were outlined to President Coolidge today.

The plans were submitted by Howard E. Coffin, president of the National Air Transport, Inc., and by a ... tion of other officers [illegible] of the corporation. ... ent assured the dele... interest in the undertaking and promised his co-operation.

The representatives of the air transportation organization stressed the fact that they are not seeking government subsidy for their operations. They plan a line of airplanes, running on regular schedule, between New York and Dallas, Tex., by way of Chicago, to carry mails and express.

BID FOR MAIL CONTRACT.

The corporation will be ready on Tuesday to submit a bid for a government mail contract between Chicago and Dallas, Coffin announced.

Stockholders in the air transport are men of national prominence in finance and industry, including John Hays Hammond, of Gloucester, Mass.; Charles F. Glenn, Philip Stockley, Lester Armour, John J. Mitchell, Jr., Robert P. Lamont of Chicago, Jeremiah Milban, William A. Rockefeller and Stuyvesant Fish of New York and Roy D. Chapin of Detroit.

The company has been organized, however, so that no monopoly over its stock can be obtained. No one individual is permitted to own more than five per cent. of its capital stock.

ECONOMIC AND DEFENSIVE.

The organization and purposes of the company were described by Coffin in the following statement:

"The subject of aviation in all its various phases and the proper form of government organization for the handling of ero matters constitutes one of the most acute issues before the country during the coming year.

"There is a great diversity of opinion as to what ought to be done for the proper direction, control and development of our American air power. But two points stand out upon which there is unanimity of agreement. They are:

"1. That we, as a nation, must for reasons both economic and defensive formulate without delay a definite policy for the effective encouragement of American aviation.

"2. That commercial aviation must be made a backbone of our air national plan or air policy looking toward the strengthening of our national defense.

"We outlined to the President the national plan upon which the National Air Transport has been organized.

"We stated that it was our definite plan to operate a line between Dallas and New York, via Chicago, over which we will carry mail and express.

"We asked no subsidy, direct or indirect. We made it clear that the group which has subscribed the capital want to go into this business on a business basis and hope ultimately to make it a commercial success.

"We called the attention of the President to the fact that the charter of the National Air Transport provides that in the event of war the corporation shall offer the United States government all its facilities.

"The President expressed his pleasure and interest in the project and assured us of his co-operation."

PROWLER SHOT AS "MIDNIGHT TERROR"

Nashville, Sept. 12.—Possibility that North Nashville's "midnight terror" might have been fatally wounded early today when Patrolman Denton shot a huge negro prowler through the abdomen after scuffling with him for several minutes, cheered the populace of this section which has been terrorized for several weeks by a masked criminal who attacked women in their hofes.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE DELAYS SAILING

Southampton, England, Sept. 12.—The unofficial seamen's strike, which, it had been believed, had been crushed, broke out anew today when 180 seamen and firemen and 60 stewards refused to sail on the Royal Mail liner Ohio.

The sailing of the Ohio was delayed, but a substitute crew was mustered and the Ohio sailed for New York late this afternoon.

their exploit in safely navigating the seaplane until rescued.

Rodgers' message, made public today, said:

"The PN-9 No. 1 thanks you for your message and congratulates the bureau on having produced a real seagoing cruiser capable of maintaining herself on sea as in the air.

"Plane intact, except that both rear lower spars were strained, due to weight of water on tips of lower wings.

"This occurred the first day out, before the fabric had been removed strength to resist upward pressure from the wing pontoons apparently being reduced. Plane landed in rough sea without wind. Power plants functioned perfectly throughout flight."

Rodgers' message was in reply to one from Admiral E. W. Eberle, the chief of operations, as follows:

"Chief of naval operations extends heartiest congratulations to PN 9, No. 1 and to all vessels engaged in this successful search. Able airmanship plus good seamanship won.

Presidential Board to Probe Air Service

Washington, Sept. 12.—Inquiry by a Presidential commission into the nation's air defeuces was forecast today as the outcome of the sensational charges made by Col. William Mitchell of the army air service.

President Coolidge himself, it is understood, will select the commission and will ask a complete survey of the U. S. air forces.

While the Mitchell disciplinary case is being disposed of through the customary military channels, the general inquiry will be conducted by a group of notable men who are expected to have the confidence of the country.

TO SHIFT POLICE FOR N. Y. PRIMARY

New York, Sept. 12.—Every police captain in the five boroughs of the city will be transferred to another precinct than his own next Tuesday, primary day, to insure impartiality in supervision of polling places.

Commissioner Enright plans to pay special attention to Manhattan, where it is expected excitement will be most intense.

PARIS-TO-BAGDAD FLIERS HELD UP

Etamps, France, Sept. 12.—Three attempts by the Aviators Cetes and Thierry to get away on their attempted flight from Paris to Bagdad, in two hops, failed today. Wind conditions and their heavy load prevented their taking off.

The attempt will be made again Sunday morning.

RADIO BAN UPHELD IN POLITICAL WAR

New York, Sept. 13.—Supreme Court Justice Mahoney today handed down a decision directing that the temporary injunction granted last week by Justice Levy preventing any city official from using the municipal radio station for political utterances be continued.

N. Y. TO PEKIN FLIGHT URGED BY MITCHELL

Colonel Tells of Two Superplanes Nearing Completion in U. S.

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 12 (A.P.).—An everland flight from New York to Peking, China, by two army transport airplanes now being constructed, and the awarding of the distinguished service medal to Comdr. John Rogers and his crew were suggested today by Col. William Mitchell, eighth corps area air officer, in a formal statement.

Col. Mitchell said he hoped for an immediate showdown of the charges he has made.

"It's the move of the American people," he said. "I feel that I have done my full duty in pointing out the defects in our service and suggesting remedies. I await the verdict and pleasure of the people of America.

"Commander Rodgers and his crew of the airplane should be decorated immediately. Their tenacity, good judgment and supreme physical endurance are worthy of our highest type of American manhood.

"It is interesting to note that there are two airplanes about to be finished in this country which are of the proved type and are able to go about 4,500 miles without taking on fuel. Why would it not be a good idea to fly with these overland from New York to Peking, stopping once at Nome, Alaska, for fuel, and then going on to that great center of population in the Asiatic continent, with a total elapsed time from New York of from sixty to eighty hours, where now by steam ship and railroad it takes four or five weeks?

Declaring that he did not desire to boost the stock of any airship manufacturing concern, Colonel Mitchell declined to state where the two army transport airship to which he referred are being built.

SPIRITS CAN SPEAK ONLY ESPERANTO NOW

Paris, Sept. 12 (A.P.)—The spirits packed up their ectoplasm and departed today after the final session of the International Spiritualists Congress.

Their visiting cards will be written in Esperanto for the next meeting as the Congress has voted that Spirits communicate easier in the proposed international tongue than in Chinese, Hindustani or even American. Spirits insisting upon using other than Esperanto tongues will not be spoken to.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was given a vote of thanks.

"BREWERY" SEIZED IN LAWRENCE RAID

Lawrence, Sept. 12.—A young "brewery" was seized here today when, acting on a "tip" from out of town, officers raided 157 Marrium st. and seized 100 gallons of beer and 400 gallons of mash.

At the same time in another part of the town, federal agents raided the home of Harry Bird and seized a quantity of whiskey and beer. Bail was arrested.

METHODIST MERGER WINS APPROVAL

Jeffersonville, Ind., Sept. 12 (A.P.)—Unification with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was approved by the northern Indiana conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church today. The vote was 164 to 12.

The conference also favored the proposed amendment allowing laymen to attend conferences. The vote was 89 to 56.

General Tells 5,000 Legion Vets Nation Easy Prey of Foreign Enemy have had enough money to launch the project," he told the Legionaires. "Boston has the opportunity of being the air port of the country and of the world."

Commenting on the new hospital for disabled veterans which has already been authorized, General Edwards stated that "it was a crying shame that it had never been started, as the money has already been authorized."

He warned the Legion to stay out of politics and "especially refrain from officially discussing the World Court."

5,000 VETS PARADE.

Massing its hordes, the American Legion of Massachusetts stormed the Hub in the final meeting of the annual convention yesterday—and Boston succumbed without a struggle.

Yesterday was War Vet Day in Boston and the city stood in abeyance waiting the world's greatest gathering of ex-servicemen in New England since those hectic days immediately before and after the war when joy and sorrow hovered in a composite over the city, and the tramp of martial feet was as regular as the rumble of the subway.

A parade of over 5,000 heroes of the army and navy, veterans of the World War, preceded by the election of officers, were the chief features of the closing session which was marked with exciting events and wholesale thrills seen by few conventions heretofore.

THOUSANDS LINE STREETS.

Thousands lined the downtown streets of the Hub to cheer the vets as they passed along, proud, with springy tread, eight years after they "did their bit." Flags waved and voices grew hoarse from shouting as half a dozen bands flared forth the tunes that were popular in those days this generation will never forget.

Dressed in sombre black cloaks and "peak hats," the Salem "witches," more than 200 members of the legion post in Salem, were greeted on every turn with great applause. They carried broomsticks. They eschew non distinction as the most picturesque organization in the parade.

Another feature that attracted considerable attention was the number of women representing the various women's auxiliaries of war veteran organizations. A fourth of the marchers were women or represented women's organizations.

Nobody in that parade, nor anybody who witnessed it will ever believe that Boston has forgotten.

Governor Fuller reviewed the marchers at the State House and Mayor Curley doffed his hat as the legionaires marched past City Hall.

In an election void of thrills because most of the offices were uncontested, Francis J. Good of Cambridge was elected commander of the Massachusetts department of the American Legion in the final session of that body yesterday.

LIST OF OFFICERS.

Commandant Good succeeds Leo M. Harley, who has served for the past year in that office. Mr. Good had no opponent.

Other officers elected were:

William McGinnis, first vice-commander, unopposed.

Richard F. Bond, second vice-commander, received 263 votes against his opponent, Coleman C. Curran's 132.

Alexander G. Jasperson was elected third vice-commander over William J. Miller by a vote of 251 to 105.

Dennis J. Haverty, department adjutant, unopposed.

Ralph M. Eastman, treasurer, unopposed.

Dr. Claude M. Fuess was elected department historian over Dr. Sydney S. Listerinck by a vote of 318 to 47.

Rev. James D. Canaris, chaplain, unopposed.

Hapgood Finds Vienna, Largest Socialist City, Helping Poor

By NORMAN HAPGOOD

(Copyright, 1925, by Universal Service.)

Vienna, Sept. 13.

TO THOSE who, like me, used to think of Vienna as the most genuinely gay capital in Europe it comes hard to conceive of her, in all her troubles, as the largest Socialist city in the world. Actually the human predicament may not be worse than it was, but the fascinating glitter is dimmed.

Her population is almost two million, and when I call her the largest Socialist city in the world I do not forget Moscow. Nobody knows whether Moscow is a Socialist city or not, and cannot know until the public is allowed to express its opinion. Moreover, there is a vast difference between Socialism and what is newly called Communism. In time it may come to be the most important of political distinctions.

Conditions Are Hard

So strong is the hold of Socialism on this city that the most optimistic bourgeois would scarcely see any prospect of shaking it off.

If things should go desperately with the population it might turn Communist. But now the enlightened Socialists have about twice as many votes as everybody else combined. They are trying what the old regime never tried. They are trying to make life bearable and decent for the majority.

Conditions are hard for such progress but they are trying it, doing amazingly well.

In the old days we strolled around and looked at the gorgeous public buildings, the art collections, the matchless cafes. Meantime, while we saw the cheery centre of the city, with its aristocrats, its pleasure seekers, there was another Vienna we did not see. It was the city, in which the poor were housed more wretchedly than in any other capital in Europe except Warsaw.

Those of us who sat in the cafes wasted little time thinking what it means to the health and morals of children to have a whole family brought up in one room.

Some Steps Forward

What mattered nothing to Austria when she was great and glorious is the first concern of the government of her capital today. I have been motoring around observing the new housing enterprises, looking at the arrangementsa and talking with the people, and if I am a bit sad when I sit in the cafes and remember the gayety of the pasts I am full of a sober cheerfulness when I see what the city is doing taken to put an end to squalor and to the mental darkness that goes with confined and dirty housing.

People always think a thing is impossible if it is difficult and if they are not interested in it, that is why prosperous ruling class all over the world has done so little to improve housing. I am no Socialist. If I am anything, which I doubt, I am a Jeffersonian Democrat.

But the world needs all kinds of forces, just how much socialistic impulse the world needs alone can tell, if it gets too much it will turn into a machine, and not a good one, certainly it needs enough to make it go after the housing problem as earnestly as it goes after efficiency in war.

Vienna practices her socialist government under very special circumstances. The fault of Socialists is sometimes that they proceed to rush ahead giddily on the capital laid up by their bourgeois predecessors, and when that game is over they bark their shins on economic laws of which they have cheerfully denied the existence.

Norman Hapgood

Must Balance Budget

But Austria, in return for being saved from financial chaos by the banking interests and the league of Nations, is compelled by the league to balance her budget, and this indirectly helps compel Vienna to balance hers, as the taxation of the city and the country are inter-related.

It was a hard necessity to face, when you consider how everything had gone to pieces in the war. The schools were barracks, roads, street cars, railway terminals, lighting were run down, to put such needed things on their feet without running into debt was hard, but, perhaps wholesome, and the ability with which the work has been done makes the socialist city government popular with the majority of the people.

So far as I know there is no attempt to spread socialist propaganda, as there is all over Russia. The big, nonthereutical things behind the socialist, however, are brought to the front. Histories in the schools no longer tell of the same things that ordinary school histories do: they take a step ahead taken nowhere else; they are not full of superiority to other nations and childish presentation of events from the standpoint of battles and of a country always in the right. What they do undertake to emphasize is what is important in the progress and ways of living of the people.

Seeker After Truth

Also you will see on public buildings an occasional indication of a new point of view. For example, one slab celebrates the anniversary of "a friend of the people who fell a martyr to the wilfulness of a Prince." Another celebrates a seeker after truth who was the victim of the same arbitrary power, but on the whole the Socialist government seeks to be objective.

Taxes are definitely aimed at the well-to-do, a person who has more than one servant pays heavily for the privilege. A family that has more rooms (in addition to the kitchen) than members pays a tax for every extra room, articles of luxury are taxed, are amusements.

The tax that existed on food before the war is abolished and rents are kept at almost nothing. The poor pay no tax except a housing tax, heavily graduated, and a small tax for electric light.

Much Over-Crowding

As a result of the rent-control the floating population that before the war had no settled abodes is now settled in rooms, such readjustment still leaves dismal over-crowding and, of course, also fails to provide for the newly married, most of whom have to crowd into one or two or three small rooms with their parents.

In spite of a shortage of land for building the Socialist government has not encroached on the Great Park system, a glory of the city. It has even extended the system by new strips of green inside the city. The only point at which there has been any difference of opinion among those engaged in philanthropic housing work is on the question of flats versus houses.

The co-operative movement all over the world seems to include what is good in individualism with what is good in Socialism. It has been busy on the housing-building question here and the ever-helpful Quakers have taken a hand with the co-operators. This group took the position that on the outskirts of the city only individual houses ought to be built, with in the center community apartment houses being kept inside the city proper. The city government, feeling the pressure of immediate need, has differed with this view, and is building apartment houses where in the future there will be regret that garden suburbs have not grown up.

Plenty to Ponder

As the World War started in the foreign office in this city the ghosts of the aristocratic former rulers, when they walk the deserted streets at night, must have plenty to think about. Not only do they see their former pleasure ground now the world's largest experiment in city-socialism; they see also as the head of its school system a former teacher thrown out of the schools of the old regime because he was a socialist.

They see, still higher up, as mayor of the city, another former teacher, whom also they threw out because he was a socialist, and thus, the "whirling of times brings in revenges."

TONG INFORMER SHOT TO DEATH

to get a charter in Massachusetts. This was refused, but the organizers went to Delaware, obtained a charter under the laws of that State and returned to Boston as the Hip Sing Association of Boston. The Boston Hip Sing is one of the young men, most of them from other parts of the country.

Harry Chin Woo, cousin of the slain Tongman, a Hip Sing official, and accused by On Leongs of being the "stool pigeon" who tipped police off in the recent raids, refused to make any comment beyond saying: "On Leongs bad, Hip Sings no blame."

Chin Cow One was twenty-five years old. He lived at 84 Hudson street.

Witness differ on what really happened. One said that the slayer was alone and that he walked up behind Chin Cow One, placed a revolver at his back and fired. The victim fell, the witness said, and the slayer backed away only to advance again, fire another shot into the body and to lay the gun upon his shoulder before fleeing.

Another witness said the slayer was accompanied by two white men who fled when the first shot was fired.

Hip Sing officials claim to know the identity of the slayer, but refused to aid police "for a little while."

Edward Gong, Hip Sing leader, stated that G. Young of 163 Hudson street, knew the assassin well and would be able to identify him later.

The slain man was employed in the Chin House, a new Hip Sing store at 64 Hudson street. It is over the operation of this new store that much trouble is said to have arisen, the On Leongs attempting to force the Hip Sings to quit. That, of course, is denied by the On Leongs

53 Tong Men to Be Deported

New York, Sept. 12.—Fifty-three Chinese, rounded up during the night by Federal officers, were ordered deported from the country immediately when they were arraigned before United States Commissioner Cotter today. They were taken to Ellis Island.

Six others caught in the raids were freed when they established citizenship. Nine others who asked for hearings were held without bail until next week.

The Chinese were rounded up in connection with the government's drive to deport all Chinese connected with the Tong outbreaks.

WOULD YOU PAY TWO CENTS FOR A NEW AUTOMOBILE?

You scarcely would expect to buy a used car of the vintage of 1906, for any such price, but the Boston Evening American is offering a new Packard sedan, a new Buick sedan and an Essex coach of the latest type, for 2 cents apiece!

The current market price of such a Packard is $3,844, of the Buick, $1,706.50, and of a fully equipped Essex, $912.80.

You may read all about this opportunity to get a splendid automobile for 2 cents in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

There isn't any "catch" about it. The three automobiles are not toys, or seconds, or used cars, but regular automobiles, which sell regularly at the higher prices named. A little help, a little pluck, a little attention, and for 2 cents you and your family may have and hold and enjoy one of the best motor-cars in New England.

Better look into this.

COAL RATE CUT SOUGHT AS U. S. LIFTS TIME BAN

Hammond to Urge Lower Tariff From West Virginia Field

On top of word from the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington of probable reduced rates on anthracite from Pennsylvania to Connecticut and Massachusetts, Chairman John Hays Hammond of the United States Coal Commission said last night that an effort would be made this week to obtain reduced shipping rates from the West Virginia soft coal fields to New England points.

The low volatile, or smokeless coal, strenuously advocated as a substitute for anthracite is produced in the West Virginia mines. At reduced shipping rates quantities of this coal could be landed in New England and prevent any possible shortage here of fuel, it is contended.

TO SPEED SHIPMENTS.

The decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, as announced yesterday, provides that the railroads may put into effect reduced rates on coal shipments from Pennsylvania to Connecticut and Massachusetts with ten days' notice on or before Oct. 15. The previous order on these rates provided that the railroads should give 30 days' notice.

The order was designed to expedite shipments in view of the strike in the anthracite fields.

DIFFERENTIAL FIXED.

Included in the rate changes from the July order were the following:

A new rate of $4.58 was fixed from anthracite mine or points on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, including Portland and Chestnut Hill, Talcottville and Willimantic, North Windham, Conn.; Forest Hills, Mass.; South Windham, Conn.; Oaklawn, R. I.; Attleboro and Boston, North Attleboro and Adamsdale, Mass.

The new order provided that to other points of destination on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad rates shall not exceed by more than $1.35 per ton on bituminous coal in carloads, contemporaneously maintained by the Pennsylvania Railroad from the Clearfield district to the same destinations.

From the mines to points on the Boston & Maine Railroad including Farley and Boston and points between a rate of $8.70 was fixed. To other points on the B. & M. rates not to exceed by more than $1.35 the rate on bituminous coal maintained by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad from the Cumberland-Piedmont coal district were fixed.

Notable Guests at Wedding of Hub Society Girl

MISS MAXWELL IS BRIDE OF H. W. ENDICOTT

Brilliant Nuptial Marks Ceremony Uniting Golfer and Big Game Hunter

PRESIDENT WAS INVITED

Statesmen and Financiers of Many Nations on List of Guests

Rockville, Ct., Sept. 12.—Society bore high the torch again today and Priscilla Maxwell of Boston and Dedham, Mass. became the bride of H. Wendell Endicott at one of the most brilliant nuptials of the season.

From the blue books of national government chiefs, personages in the public eye and the dwellers on the high places, the guest list was culled—a startlingly prominent company.

But both the bride and bridegroom are well known themselves, the former being a noted golfer and the latter a big game hunter, writer, world traveler and sportsman.

He is the son of the late Henry B. Endicott of Boston, friend of both capital and labor, conciliator in many labor disputes in Massachusetts and during the war head of the Massachusetts public safety committee and State and Federal Food Administrator.

A close friend of President Coolidge, the bridegroom started with his bride to pay a visit to the White House following the nuptials at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. Maxwell, at Maxwell Court.

JUNIOR LEAGUE MEMBER.

The bride holds membership in the Hartford, Manchester, Longmeadow and Agawam hunt and golf clubs. She was graduated from Dana Hall, Wellesley, and then traveled extensively about the world. She moves prominently in society of Massachusetts, New York, Connecticut and Rhode Island and belongs to the Junior League.

Mr. Endicott holds membership in a score of clubs, from Florida to Canada. They include the Harvard Club of New York, Union, Algonquin, Exchange, and Harvard Club of Boston, Dedham Polo and Country Club, Dedham Club, Hoosic, Whisic of Milton, Cohasset Golf Club, Woods Hole Golf Club, Cohasset Yacht Club, Tobique Salmon Club and Deeside Club of Canada, Swan Island Shooting Club of North Carolina.

During the World War he was a lieutenant colonel in the quartermaster corps, serving both in this country and overseas.

Big game hunting and fishing are his metier and recently there came from his pen "Among the Florida Keys With Rod and Harpoon," one of the numerous works of which he is the author.

BRILLIANT PAGEANT.

Maxwell Court, the stately home of the bride and one of Connecticut's noted estates, was lavishly decorated and arranged for the festivities. The house itself was a mass of smilax wreaths and garlands in the Florentine design, contrasting effectively with the hundreds of gorgeously tinted autumn blossoms, reds, golds, purples and yellows, grouped about.

Wedding guests, gathered on a broad velvet-smooth grass terrace, witnessed the pageant of the processional, as it wound slowly from the house across a raised brick terrace to halt before the out-of-door altar on the southern facade of Maxwell Court. The altar, marvellously carved, is a museum piece brought from Italy by the bride's family. Rich velvet tapestry hangings were arranged as a background, and Easter lilies were clustered at either side.

Mr. Maxwell gave his daughter in marriage, and the Rev. Warren Archibald, of the South Congregational Church of Hartford, Connecticut, was the officiating clergyman.

The bride wore a richly effective costume of clear white chiffon embroidered in pearls over white satin, with frothy veil of tulle simply bound with pearls. Her bouquet, entirely of white, was composed of orchids with a shower of the same tiny white exotic blossoms.

CARRIES GOLDEN BASKET

She had but three attendants, her sister, Mrs. Frederick N. Belding of Rockville, Connecticut, as matron of honor, another sister, Miss Harriet Maxwell, as maid of honor and little Martha Endicott, the bridegroom's small daughter, as flower girl.

Mrs. Belding and Miss Harriet Maxwell wore similar costumes of pale green chiffon with gold embroideries, their shoes of gold and their bouquets of rose pink orchids. The little flower girl also wore green chiffon with gold, and carried a golden basket filled with vari-tinted blossoms.

Harold C. Keith of Brockton was best man and there were four ushers —Frederick N. Belding of Rockville, James LeFevre, Morgan Butler and Samuel Endicott, all of Norwood.

After the ceremonial there was a large and brilliant reception. Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. Maxwell, parents of the bride; Miss Katherine Endicott of Dedham and Mrs. Eugene Endicott of Norwood, with Clarence W. Barron of Boston and Cohasset, were in the receiving line. Mr. Barron was the father of the first Mrs. Endicott (Martha Barron), who died some years ago.

PRESIDENT INVITED.

The names of President and Mrs. Coolidge headed the long and impressive list of wedding guests bidden to Maxwell Court for the ceremonial and attending festivities. From Boston there was a special train for the guests. Many went by motor. Society people from practically every State in the Union, titled personages from abroad, statesmen, financiers and notables of every sort were bidden.

'MISS AMERICA' GETS TROPHY

Replica of "Golden Mermaid" Trophy Presented to Fay Lamphier

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 12—Miss Fay Lamphier of Oakland, Cal., who was crowned "Miss America of 1925" last night before a crowd of 10,000 persons, and Miss Mary Katherine Campbell of Columbus, O., who was "Miss America" in 1922 and 1923, were given ovations by 2,500 spectators today when the beauty pageant prizes were distributed on the pier here.

Miss Campbell, who was extremely popular with last night's crowd, was awarded the original "golden mermaid" trophy, worth approximately $5,000.

Miss Lamphier was given a replica of the trophy, worth $2,000. Originally it had been intended to retire the original trophy and to present replicas to girls chosen as "Miss America" in years following.

Trophies similar to Miss Lamphier's will be sent to Miss Margaret Gorman of Washington, D. C., 1921 winner, and to Miss Ruth Malcolmson of Philadelphia, last year's selection.

Miss Malcolmson did not compete this year because she said the contest had been "commercialized" by permitting professional beauties to enter.

HAY FEVER MAY DRIVE COOLIDGE TO YACHT

Washington, Sept. 12.—A head cold physicians described as a sort of hay fever has been bothering President Coolidge since his arrival here, and if his condition does not improve he will be forced to spend the week-end on the Mayflower.

The President is subject to these colds, but on his vacation in the salt air they did not appear. Since his return he has visited his physician twice.

UNIFORMS URGED FOR DOPE AGENTS

Cambridge Folk Want Help in Telling 'Em From Kidnapers

Residents of Cambridge wish narcotic agents, secret service men and others of the same general profession would put on uniforms and wear scarlet sashes.

Then they would not lose sleep when four narcotic agents come to town again and snatch up one of their citizens, throw him into a taxi-cab and "kidnap" him.

Gus Sherelka, Cambridge pool room owner, was arrested by narcotic agents and hustled off to Boston without a word of explanation. One agent held a gun ready to prevent a rescue. And neighbors telephoned a daring kidnaping had been staged. An alarm was sent out for the kidnapers.

And all because Cambridge people couldn't tell the difference between narcotic agents and thugs.

"Put 'em in uniform," is the cry from Cambridge.

'400' THRONG MYOPIA FOR TURF EVENTS

Postponed Labor Day Horse Show Contests Are Spectacular

North Shore society and the sporting clans flocked to Myopia yesterday afternoon to witness the postponed contests for famous trophies.

The Turner Hill Cup, the Kennewick Cup, the Masters Challenge Cup and the Abbot Cup were on the lists, with additional spectacular events in the appearances of hunt teams and riders wearing the "Pink" and toppers of full hunting costume.

Practically every famous stable up and down the North Shore was represented. For the Masters' Challenge Cup, James P. Mandell had three horses entered: Mileh, Pick Me and Carl O' Mine. The Ledyard Farm Stables sent Justice.

CUP ENTRY LARGE.

For the Turner Hill Cup there was a large entry. Justice was entered, Miss Ellen Tainter's Lady Gray and Scintillating Lad; Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., had Irish, Pink Coat and Melton in the lists; Mrs. John S. Lawrence, spirited rider, entered Dauntless; Oliver Wolcott had Whiteside; Mrs. Keith McLeod, Sir Galahad; A. F. Goodwin, Allgold; Miss Anne Ayer entered Nora White, and Mrs. John K. Howard, Irish Queen.

William Stuart Forbes entered Dyng and Seagull. The Abbott Cup brought Royal Dixon and Simple Sally from the Bayard Tuckerman stables; Joseph Leiter's Shenandoah, Frederick Ayer's Clifton Pride, Miss Alice Thorndike's Hill Dill and two horses belonging to Miss Mary Curtis, Hermes and Little Flyver.

APPLAUD HUNT TEAMS.

Hunt teams of two and three horses won great applause with Miss Theodora and Miss Anne Ayer, Miss Mary Curtis, Augustus P. Goodwin, Miss Alice Thorndike, Mrs. John S. Lawrence, the Myopia Hunt Club and James P. Mandell having entries.

All these events were on the Myopia Club's Labor Day program, an annual classic staged at Myopia each year by those noted sportsmen. Wet grounds, however, made it necessary to postpone until yesterday the various events, always so brilliant a part of hunt club shows.

After the show there was an informal entertaining at the club house. Thomas G. Frothingham, Charles Sumner Bird, Bayard Tuckerman and others officiated at the committee of arrangements.

Paradise for Men Found in the Pacific

London, Sept. 12.

AN earthly paradise where there are 10 women to every man, so that the men are as gods, waited on hand and foot, has been discovered by William Harcourt, "movie" photographer for the Scientific Expeditionary Research Association, who has returned from the Southern Pacific.

This paradise is an island called Rapa. The men sit in state most of the time, and many of the women who wait on them are strong and muscular, full of fun and life, while the men are placid and have little to say for themselves.

Police Called in Hub Beauty Shop Feud

Mildred Jessup.

A FEW crowded hours in the Poll Farrot Beauty Shop at 41 Winter st. and a spirited dispute between a beautiful girl employe and her woman employer, during which two policemen were called, came to light yesterday via Small Claims Court.

The State Department of Labor has an advisory hand in the battle also, but it is in Small Claims Court that the question of the rights of a working girl will be fought out.

As explained by Mildred Jessup, she came to Boston from New York and secured employment in the beauty shop, of which Mrs. Rebecca Green is proprietress.

The other girls, Miss Jessup declares, were not being paid what they were worth. She demanded and received $27 a week, she says.

TOLD BUSINESS POOR.

A week ago when she gave notice she was leaving in another week, she asserts Mrs. Green advised: "If you're going to New York, go now; don't wait until the week is up."

But Miss Jessup said she would leave on the date for which she had given notice. Monday was a holiday, but she worked on Tuesday and Wednesday. As she was going home Wednesday night, she says, Mrs. Green told her to take Thursday off as business was poor.

Miss Jessup told the court clerk that she said to Mrs. Green:

"I'll see you in the morning, old dear," and to this Mrs. Green is alleged to have said: "You won't work."

Miss Jessup, however, went to work Thursday morning, and when Mrs. Green told her she could not do anything that day, the girl declared she defied her.

CALLED POLICE.

Mrs. Green is alleged to have telephoned then to Miss Jessup's fiance.

The girl says that Mrs. Green also threatened to call a policeman, and later the police were called in, the girl said.

After learning the issues in dispute the police told Mrs. Green that she needed a lawyer, not a policeman. Mrs. Jessup said she finished ten weeks' work in Mrs. Green's dollar square beauty shop.

Mrs. Green, when interviewed concerning the difficulty with Miss Jessup, refused to make any statement.

BOY POISONED BY WEED STEW HE MADE DIES

Six Roxbury Children Ill From His Cooking; Two Close to Death

With the death yesterday at City Hospital of Louis Denofrio, eight, of No. 174 Norfolk avenue, Roxbury, from poison caused by eating stewed jimson weed found in a vacant lot in Roxbury, warning has been issued by the health authorities to mothers to warn their children not to eat anything they find in the open.

Denofrio was one of six children made ill by eating the jimson weed. Henry Balzarini, six, No. 13 Sherwood street, Roxbury; Leo DiPaull, six, of No. 8 Sherwood court, are still on the danger list at the City Hospital.

Police learned that Denofrio, anxious to be a chef, collected the jimson weed and led his playmates to eat a stew he made with it. The wild weed, it was learned, not like the regular garden variety, which resembles cucumbers.

News of the death of Denofrio and the serious illness of his playmates caused mothers to drive their children out of vacant lots and started a rumor that a poisoner was deliberately trying to kill children.

Doctors declared wild jimson weed is not necessarily fatal, but it is a good thing for parents to be on the watch to see their children do not eat it.

ANOTHER RABBIT TRICK!

Perhaps you've seen a magician pull a rabbit from a hat, but have you ever seen a rabbit turned into a seal, or fox, or beaver, or sable, or other animal?

It's an easy trick for an expert. Rabbit skins are treated and dyed to look like more costly furs. For example, Northern Seal is a trade name for seal-dyed rabbit, or hare; Ermaline a trade name for white rabbit treated to imitate Ermine. There are other trade names applied to rabbit pelts, treated and dyed, which may be misleading to the public if not qualified. Here are some of them—

RABBIT TREATED AND DYED IS CALLED

Australian Seal		New Zealand Seal		Chinchilla
Alaskan	"	Near	"	Ermine
American	"	New	"	Ermaline
Arctic	"	Northern	"	French Leopard
Baffin	"	Polar	"	French Lynx
Baltic	"	Sealette		French Sable
Bay	"	Sealine		Kit Fox
Cape	"	Semeuse	"	Kit Cony
Clipped	"	Two L Seal		Leopard Cony
Coast	"	Baltic Beaver Fox		Marten
Coney	"	Beaver		Mole
Electric	"	Beaverette		Mole Cony
French	"	Beaver Cony		Moline
Hudson Bay	"	Belgian Cony		Muskrat
La Meuse	"	Belgian Lynx		Nutria
Laskin	"	Cony		Nutria Cony

The Boston Better Business Commission has recommended to all Boston furriers that all trade names likely to mislead be qualified by their true names, e. g., seal-dyed rabbit, Kit Fox (dyed-rabbit), etc. Readers of Boston newspapers will notice that such trade names are generally qualified in advertising. They should expect a similar explanation of such trade names when buying furs.

ARREST REVEALS $15,000 PLOT TO MULCT GIMBEL

Jailed Clerk Declares He Is Made Victim of Blackmail Schemers

New York, Sept. 12.—An attempt to extort $16,000 from Louis H. Gimbel, Jr., of the department store firm, resulted today in the arraignment of Benjamin Russhoss, 18, a clerk, in Yorkville court.

He was held in $5,000 on a charge of extortion, for examination on Wednesday.

He protested his innocence and asserted he was employed by others to carry out the scheme whereby Gimbel was to be mulcted.

According to Detective Hooker, Gimbel, prior to September 1, received three letters signed "John." Each demanded $15,000, and threatened dire consequences if the money was not forthcoming.

HANDED OVER PACKAGE.

The writer let it be understood he was a discharged employee of the department store and needed money to support his family.

The last letters directed Mr. Gimbel to be at the corner of Park avenue and Fifty-first street at three o'clock Friday afternoon, September [illegible] money. He was told a walk up to him, tip hit y[illegible] you, Mr. Welsh?"

With Hooker watching across the street, Mr. Gimbel waited. At three o'clock Russhoss walked up, touched his hat, and said: "How are you, Mr. Walsh?" Gimbel handed him a package of cut paper resembling a bundle of bills. Then Hooker made the arrest.

PROTESTS INNOCENCE.

Russhoss protested he had been hired as an investigator some weeks ago through answering an advertisement for part time work.

He said he met his employer at the Hotel Astor and the two, with three other men, went for an auto ride, which he was told his job was to help find a "Mr. Welsh." If the missing man was found, he says, he was told, he would be suitably paid.

He denied any knowledge of criminal intent on the part of his employer, for whom the police may search after they have looked further into the antecedents and circumstances of Russhoss.

"GAMBLING" BARRED AT VERMONT FAIR

Brattleboro, Vt., Sept. 12.—Officials of the Valley Fair Association today are wondering whether the public will be interested in a profitless, chanceless game of tiddle-winks as a carnival attraction. This idea follows the decision of M. J. Nagood of Fern, author of the bill prohibiting games of chance at fairs, to be a "guest" at the fair.

45 HOURS TO POLE PLANNED BY AMUNDSEN

Explorer Hopes to Continue to Alaska Without Making a Stop

Rome, Sept. 12.—From Spitzbergen to the North Pole in 45 hours is the achievement which Capt Roald Amundsen has set for himself when he makes his next attempt to reach the Pole by airship, according to Col. Umberto Nobili, constructor of the Italian dirigible, N-4, which Amundsen has acquired.

"We expect to reach the Pole in 45 hours from Spitzbergen, and then fly on to Alaska without attempting a landing," said Col. Nobili, who will act as one of the pilots.

Lincoln Ellsworth, the American who accompanied Amundsen on his last ill-fated airplane attempt at the Pole, will be a member of the new expedition.

Eighteen men will be aboard the N-1 which will be equipped with heating apparatus to enable the explorers to live in comfort in the most frigid weather.

FAMOUS ITALIAN ART COMING TO U. S.

Rome, Sept. 12.—American art galleries will undoubtedly become richer in old masters if the report current today that an English dealer has purchased the entire collection of paintings in the Gionalli Palace, Venice, is confirmed.

There is, of course, a law which makes it difficult to export Italian art treasures.

WOMAN'S SLAYER TRAILED TO MINE

Pittsburgh, Sept. 12.—Abandoned mines in Allegheny County are being probed for the slayer of Mrs. Mollie McGinnis, who, according to an eyewitness, was beaten to death by Thad Lotus, spurned suitor. When last seen the slayer was running toward an old mine entry.

LEAP SAVES 3 AT CROSSING; 1 DEAD

Saybrook, Ct., Sept. 12.—Trapped when their car stalled on a railroad crossing here, three persons narrowly escaped death by leaping from the car as an express train approached. One other person, Nicholas Rotunda of Brooklyn, was killed, having failed to jump from the car in time. Rotunda, with Walter Galligan of New Haven, Henry Osterhols of New York, all students at Fordham College, and Miss Ethel Lind of Boston, were en route from New Haven, where they had been visiting Galligan, to Old Lyme, where they were to play in an orchestra, when the accident occurred.

BATTLE OVER MAYORALTY IS WAXING WARM

Big Field of Candidates Already; Many More to Be Heard From

By THOMAS F. PHELAN

Boston's mayoralty fight is waxing warm. Strenuous days are in store for candidates. Supporters are on the firing line. Verbal brickbats are promised. Campaign slogans, such as "a downtown candidate with uptown ideas," are being coined. Indications point to a feast of oratory, flow of wit, floods of abuse, red fire and music.

Decks are cleared for action. All that remains is for the Election Commissioners to issue nomination papers on September 26. Then comes the race for signatures. The dead line October 13.

MANY ALREADY IN FIELD.

Election will be held Tuesday, November 3. Besides a mayor, twenty-two councilmen, one from each ward, and a school committee will be elected. Candidates for Mayor already in the field under their own signatures are Malcolm E. Nichols, Charles E. Burrill, Register of Deeds William T. A. Fitzgerald, Sheriff John A. Kelliher, District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, Clerk of Courts Francis A. Campbell, Dr. Walter G. McCauley, City Councillor James A. Moriarty and Colonel John Dunn.

Candidates to be heard from are Judge Edward L. Logan of South Boston Court, City Treasurer John J. Curley, Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn, Ex-Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, City Councillor James T. Purcell and ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

"I'll make a statement covering everything within a few days," said Glynn, referring to a demonstration to be staged in his interest in Faneuil Hall Tuesday noon. He admitted he is in so deep in the mayoralty fight that it will be a sad blow to his friends if he withdraws. He has been active the past two years campaigning for mayor.

GLYNN OLD MARKETMAN.

Glynn's zero hour comes Tuesday in Faneuil Hall. There he is to make his important announcement. The affair will be staged by the marketmen. "Teddy," let it be remembered, knows how to handle beef and pass it out to his "constits." He had charge of a market for a big packing concern before he became head of the fire department. His friends among the market men are legion.

The program will be under the direction of Alton B. Briggs, president of the Fruit and Produce Exchange. Speakers will be William A. Dee, William H. Mollenhardt and Thomas J. Kelly. Music will be by the 101st Veterans' Band. Galleries will be reserved for ladies. At an opportune time "Teddy," as the marketmen call him, will be ushered on the stage and presented with a massive memorial, said to be a request that he run for mayor.

RECEPTION TO JOHN J. CURLEY

City Treasurer John J. Curley, brother of the mayor, still has the mayoralty bee buzzing in his ear. His office is deluged with letters from old and new friends urging him to run. He is strong in Irish society circles it is stated, and many of the letters are from members of those bodies.

"I'm thinking seriously of entering the fight for mayor," he said yesterday. He will be tendered a reception today by the members of the Tammany Club at an outing to be held on a farm in Ashland. It is understood he will have an important announcement to make in connection with his candidacy.

General Legan is expected to make some sort of announcement regarding his candidacy late this week. City Councillor Purcell has a statement prepared which, it is expected, will be issued Monday or Tuesday.

Friends of former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald are urging him to enter the lists. It is known that he is giving serious thought to the matter. With so many candidates in the field on the Democratic end, and the prospects of a Republican being elected, Fitzgerald is regarded in political circles as a compromise candidate.

Politicians of the old school yesterday said that Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald will be the logical candidate at the proper time. It was hinted that he and Martin Lomasney are working to organize the Democratic City Committee and have that body come out with an indorsement of Fitzgerald for Mayor when the Good Government Association springs its candidate early in October.

John L. Fitzgerald, president of the Democratic City Committee, is expected to call a meeting of that body some time this week. He is closely allied with Lomasney.

It was declared in the rear of city hall yesterday that it is a tossup whether Sheriff Kelliher or District Attorney O'Brien will receive the Good Government Association indorsement. Nichols is looked upon as the compromise candidate by the executive committee of the organization if no agreement is reached to endorse Kelliher or O'Brien.

Girl Dancer to Aid Church

Marie Solari, dancer, will be among those who will give their services tomorrow evening at an entertainment in Parker Hall, on Winthrop avenue, to benefit the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Beachmont. Other juvenile acts from Boston, East Boston, Winthrop and Revere will be seen.

The affair, which is sponsored by the Rev. J. Cronan, will be in charge of Miss Anna F. Mohr, assisted by Miss Bertha M. Morrisroe.

Concord Makes No Fuss About 290th Birthday

CONCORD jogged calmly past its 290th birthday yesterday. A little old 290th birthday means nothing to Concord, all concentration being on the 300th birthday ten years hence, when the town will sweep up and dust Main street and call the young folks home for a real pop-off.

The town was incorporated on Sept. 12, 1635. It was the first "fresh water town" in the country, that is, a town not on the seacoast.

'MOTHERS' WAR OVER CARNATION

Miss Jarvis Must Face Court Tomorrow for Disorderly Conduct

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—Miss Anna Jarvis, nationally known as the founder of Mother's Day, will be given a hearing before Magistrate Fitzgerald, Monday on a charge of disorderly conduct.

She is alleged to have used abusive language to delegates at the convention of American War Mothers last night.

The controversy occurred as balloting began in the convention room according to several war mother delegates. Having repeatedly been refused admission to the room, Miss Jarvis is alleged to have quarrelled with delegates returning from dinner.

Her ire was aroused, delegates said, when the war mothers adopted the carnation as their national emblem. Miss Jarvis contended that the war mothers had no right to adopt the carnation as their favorite flower, as she had appropriated it as the emblem of mother's day.

Mrs. Catherine Tullidge of Milford, Conn., and H. H. McClear, husband of the national president, preferred charges against Miss Jarvis.

T. O'CALLAGHAN'S FUNERAL MONDAY

Funeral services for Thomas O'Callaghan of Dorchester, once the largest dealer in carpets and rugs in New England and a man whose hard of charity was always active, though unseen, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. in St. Peter's Church, Meeting House Hill.

The merchant died Friday at his home, No. 41 Bullard street, Dorchester after an illness of some months.

A native of West Springfield, where he was born in 1856, Mr. O'Callaghan started in business at fifteen with Hadley & Pond, a Boston carpet house.

He was a member of many church and fraternal organizations and is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Mary E. Wall, and eight children, one the wife of the former Harvard baseball captain, Arthur J. Conlon.

MACRI LAWYER CHARGED WITH REVILING JUROR

Koletsky Hearing Set for Few Days Before Girl Slayer's Retrial

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 12.—Olympia Macri's long Summer in jail resulting from the refusal of a lone juror to acquit her for the slaying of her alleged betrayer, John Pagnano, last February, was recalled today by the filing of the long-awaited presentment by the State against her counsel, Attorney Joseph A. Koletsky.

The presentment was filed Thursday, but was not made public until today, following action of Court Clerk Alfred N. Wheeler in withholding it from the press.

It charges Koletsky with "upbraiding and attempting to humiliate" Irving A. Andrew, the lone juryman who refused to acquit the girl of the murder charge, after a prolonged and bitterly fought trial last May.

A return was ordered for Sept. 30. It was filed by County Solicitor Arnor A. Ailing. Koletsky has 20 days in which to prepare for a hearing.

"I am indeed very happy the charges have been brought at last," said Koletsky when informed of the filing. Beyond saying he had waited "patiently and eagerly" to learn the nature of the charges he refused comment.

The specific charge of the presentment is based on a scene in the jury room after the eleven other jurors begged Andrew to agree to acquittal and he stood out for hours against their pleas.

The State Attorney charges that Koletsky went into the jury room for some exhibits. "Immediately thereafter," reads the presentment, "Atty. Koletsky in a loud tone upbraided and attempted to humiliate Andrew.

"Pointing his finger at Andrew, Koletsky said in substance:

"'My God! How could you do such a thing? I am ashamed of you and I refuse to shake your hand. The blood of this girl is on your hands and will be the rest of your living days.

"'The girl won't live a week. You have killed her and killed my wife.'"

Boy of 12 Catches 200-Lb. Shark

Nantucket Hails New Champion

Donald Kaplan, Nantucket schoolboy, and the six-foot shark he pulled in from the deep. Kaplan weighs only half as much as the fish.

TO twelve-year-old Donald Kaplan, Nantucket schoolboy, the palm-fringed laurel can now be awarded as the champion Nantucket fisherman—juvenile or otherwise—for the season galloping on toward the end.

Donald, with his mother's clothes-line and a huge hook that could well do service as an anchor, snagged a six-foot shark weighing 200 pounds.

It was too much for Donald, who doesn't assay 100 himself yet in poundage, and he hailed his youthful pals in the offing to subdue the giant fish.

But the fish was getting the best of the entire gang when a Coast Guard luffed along the beach and went to the rescue. He fired several bullets into the fighting shark, taking all the fight out of it.

Donald, in addition to being the juvenile champion of Nantucket for 1925, is the son of W. J. Kaplan, Nantucket merchant.

CALLS FALL RIVER MILL MEN SLEEPY

Fall River, Sept. 12.—"Some of those who are in charge of cotton mills in Fall River are so asleep on their jobs that it would be impossible to revive them with the use of a pulmotor."

This was the comment today by Mayor Talbot upon learning that his plan for the improvement of the textile industry was being criticized by manufacturers. Mayor Talbot suggested consolidation of a number of mills under one head to revive the industry and to end the industrial depression of a year with many out of work.

GIANTS TWIRLER IN ALIMONY FIGHT

New York, Sept. 12.—Hugh McQuillan, New York Giants pitcher, is to appear in Supreme Court, Brooklyn, Monday, to show cause why he should not be sued for contempt of court for alleged failure to pay his wife, Mrs. Nellie McQuillan, $500 accrued alimony.

Mrs. McQuillan charges her husband is over-friendly with a beauty contest winner. McQuillan denies the charge.

GLORIA'S MARQUIS KISSES FRIEND ADIEU

New York, Sept. 12.—Marquis de la Falaise, husband of Gloria Swanson, was a visitor at the French line pier today. He went to see off Rene Eugene Huber, designer of women's clothes, on the France. Said Huber:

"Yes, I design all of Miss Swanson's clothes. I am going to Paris to obtain inspiration—ah, yes."

Before the gangplank was lifted, Huber and the Marquis kissed each other.

2 GUILTY ON RUM CHARGE; MUST MOVE

TAKES CRUISER TO MAKE CALL

When most people go a-calling they take a trolley car; when some people go a-calling they hail a taxi; but when a vice-admiral goes a-calling he summons a cruiser!

It became imperative, not long ago, for Vice-Admiral Sir James A. Fergusson to confer with the British Minister, Hon. James G. Chilton. The Summer British Embassy is at Manchester-by-the-Sea; the nearest harbor for cruisers and battleships and other big ships is Gloucester, so when Sir James hailed the cruiser British cruiser, H. M. S. Calcutta to take him across the Atlantic, Gloucester became the hostess city to the visiting Englishmen.

And whenever a foreign vessel visits an American port an American vessel acts as host, so the U. S. S. Detroit, just out of drydock at the Charlestown Navy Yard, was ordered to Gloucester to remain while the British cruiser is in port.

There will be a good deal of entertaining for the officers and men of the two ships by the people on the North Shore. Both ships will be open to the public at certain times.

HUB SEEKS BIBLE READING RECORD

With a new time record for reading the Bible in view, Rev. Robert S. Fries and twenty Bible students will begin tomorrow a non-stop Bible reading in the Seventh Day Adventist Temple, Warren avenue.

From Genesis to Revelations the twenty-one readers will race aloud through the ancient tome in fifteen-minute relays, with a finishing time calculated at about noon next Thursday.

Rev. Mr. Fries will open the Bible at 9 A.M. tomorrow and as the last second of his fifteen-minute "spell" ticks off, one of the students will take up the reading, to continue for the next fifteen minutes, when he too will be relieved.

The Bible contains a total of 775,692 words, including stumbling blocks such as Epaphroditus, Shemaiah, Esarhaddon, Shishak, Shear-Jashub and Shinsi.

In their reading, the record-makers will utter "and" 46,227 times, "Lord" 1,855 times, but "Reverend," "everlasting punishment" and "girl" only once, with "everlasting fire" twice.

READERS WILL SHARE $25,000 IN NEW GAME

There Are 3,161 Awards, All in Gold, in the War Heroes Contest, On Today

is regularly on sale in your community.

It is not necessary to register your name, in order to take part in this patriotic and educational contest and share in the distribution of the $25,000 in gold.

You are not asked to solicit subscriptions, or do anything else except save and cut the War Heroes pictures, put them together again in correct order, identify the properly reassembled photograph correctly, and name the war in which the man distinguished himself.

So Start Today

Start today! 'Begin now! The weeks will pass quickly. How short a time ago we were planning our vacations! With what speed Christmas and New Years are racing full-speed upon us!

If good resolutions are in order, now is the time to resolve to begin the New Year with some of this "Game of War Heroes" money in our bank accounts.

Twenty-five hundred dollars may be won by any one of our New England readers, born and reared, as so many of them have been, surrounded on every side by monuments and memorials of the great men who laid the foundation of the Republic.

As a game alone, the War Heroes will be found a most interesting as well as a highly profitable pastime. When it comes to designating the war in which the individual fought it will be necessary for us to brush up a little on our knowledge of United States history. Going to the books for such refreshment cannot be other than beneficial.

Look today's three pictures over. See what the editor has to say in three or four lines of particularly black type immediately under each problem. Hard to go wrong if you take advantage of these "leads."

A Small Fortune

No one likes to talk money, but everybody on the staff of the Boston Sunday Advertiser will be both pained and disappointed if the First Award in this unusual game is NOT taken by some alert New Englander.

That award, as has been said, is $2,500.

You know what you can do with $2,500.

The amount is a small fortune, a nest-egg from which may be developed a profitable business, a new home, any one of a hundred good things.

Do not say, "But I have no chance; I could not win!"

Your chance is exactly as good as the next person's, as that of anyone else in the world!

The $25,000 MUST be won, WILL be awarded!

If you want some of it get ready now by studying the War Heroes page, cutting, rearranging and identifying the pictures and reading carefully the few rules of this wonderful game.

Arrange for Paper

One brief word in conclusion.

A contest of this description, in which there is $25,000 at stake, is certain to increase the weekly demand for the Boston Sunday Advertiser, already and for some years past the Sunday newspaper with the "largest circulation in New England."

Such an increased demand must inevitably mean that here and there there will be a newsdealer who, at a very early hour in the day, will be, "All sold out of Boston Sunday Advertisers!"

It may be that you have heard that doleful report already:

"All sold out of Boston Sunday Advertisers!"

There are few announcements more lugubrious, more discouraging: "All sold out of Boston Sunday Advertisers!"

If you decide to sit in on the Game of War Heroes, as we trust you may, make it a point to advise your regular newsdealer at once that you will want a Boston Sunday Advertiser saved for you every Sunday throughout the brief life of the "Game of War Heroes."

Speak to the newsdealer today!

And do not forget these important points:

The $25,000 in gold MUST BE WON!

And WILL BE PAID!

MISSING GIRL IS FEARED A SUICIDE

New Bedford, Sept. 12.—Fear was expressed today by relatives of Pauline Sypek, seventeen-year-old school girl, who disappeared Wednesday, that she had committed suicide because of her failure to be promoted to the senior class in school.

The girl has been sought in Boston and other cities. When she left home she took no extra clothing or personal property.

HONEYMOON CAR BLOCKS TRAFFIC

A balky auto which tied up waterfront traffic yesterday, spoiled the secret getaway of John J. Sullivan, Boston Advertiser police reporter. It was his wedding day.

Yesterday morning he was married to Miss Margaret Evelyn Rooney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Rooney of 88 Hersey street, Hingham, Rev. Fr. Moran of St. Paul's Church, Hingham, officiating.

Mr. Sullivan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sullivan of 24 Gladstone street, East Boston.

Breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents and was attended by immediate members of both families.

Then the troubles of the newlyweds started. They lost their baggage and a plan to escape in a taxicab was thwarted.

Eventually they got under way for Boston, trailed by a "flivver." At Rowe's Wharf the honeymoon car stopped. There was a bedlam of auto horns in the traffic blockade.

A big policeman yelled, then smiled as he hailed the bridegroom and his bride. Then Abraham Slobowitz and "Conny" Muldoon, foreman of longshoremen, hurried to the rescue, and with longshoremen, bus boys and bootblacks, rolled the car from Atlantic ave. to the docks.

And so the honeymooners escaped with a hundred cheers.

1,000 ENTRANTS FOR BABY SHOW

A baby health show, with over 1000 entrants, will feature the annual bazaar of Michael J. Perkins Post, American Legion, at the Legion home, Broadway, South Boston, on next Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Monday nights.

Since last year, when only two out of 700 entrants were pronounced 100 p.c. perfect, South Boston mothers have been grooming their children for this event. Leading Boston specialists will be judges.

Thursday night will be devoted to children up to two years of age; Friday to three-year-olds; Saturday to those under five, and Monday to children of members of the Post up to five.

Dr. James Regan of South Boston is chairman of the committee.

MISSION ALUMNI HAVE FIELD DAY

The alumni of the Mission School enjoyed a field day and outing at Riverside Park yesterday. The feature was a series of races for which valuable prizes were awarded.

A complete bill of athletic contests was run. The committees consisted of William Callanan, sports; Miss Helen Wall, prizes; Gerard B. Cleary, transportation; Warren McBride, swimming; Miss Margaret Walsh, dancing; Miss Mary Crowell, tennis, and Miss Margaret Lorden, music.

'World's Perfect Fool' Has $600,000 in Worthless Bonds

HE'S BEEN PAID NEVER A DIME IN DIVIDENDS

Oliver Perry Linstedt Sails From Boston for Europe, Away From "Con" Men

By Sandy Givens

"GOOD people, call me fool!" No race track loser ever walked back, penniless, from the track uttering that colorful phrase more convincingly that Oliver Perry Linstedt, gray-haired soldier of fortune, pioneer Texas railroad man, gold mine promoter, one time oil man and adventurer extraordinary as he parted from American shores and American stock salesmen "for good."

In his room at a Boston hotel, this distinguished gentleman, iron gray hair topping a high, shrewd forehead and a kindly face, was surrounded by hundreds of bonds, yellow, gold, red, blue—every color of the rainbow.

They were stacked high in careless piles, on the bed, on chairs, on the table, dresser and on the floor. To a reporter's eyes they looked like a million dollars thrown around.

It was a Temple of Mammon with a 1925 gold god, handsome, sophisticated, blase, sweeping his untold treasures with a careless eye.

"Most Perfect Foot"

"You may tell the whole world, Mr. Newspaperman," he smiled, "that Oliver Perry Linstedt, of Calcutta and Nome, Devil's Gap and Paris, has the distinct and pleasant honor of being the world's most perfect 'fool.'"

He swept the great piles of bonds with a scornful hand.

"That represents $600,000—and my foolishness. I have gathered that pile in the past 30 years. It has been my life work."

"But if you have made $600,000 why do you call yourself a fool?"

"I didn't say those bonds were worth $600,000, my boy," the sage smiled. "I said they represented $600,000."

"Con" Calling Cards

"I bought the first goal brick made. I paid $5,000 for a batch of oil stock when the general public was burning tallow candles. In that pile of pretty stocks and bonds are the calling cards of every 'con' man who ever lived.

"I collected worthless bonds as a stamp collector hunts freak stamps. It was the world's choicest morsel. Barnum was rocking my cradle when he made his famous statement. When 'con' men found times hard they always hunted me out and were sure of a meal ticket.

"That batch of colored wall paper is the best collection any man ever had.

"Do you see the hundreds of stocks scattered around?" he asked. "They are dated from 1895 to 1925. They represent everything from automatic safety pin inventions to schemes to make typewriter ribbons out of surplus hair in barber shops.

"I bought them all. Paid good money for them. And of the thousands, not one of them ever paid me a dime in dividends. I am one financier who never clipped a coupon.

"Broke? Oh, no! I inherited quite a bit. I made money in diamonds in Africa, promoted paying gold mines in Mexico and Alaska, found oil in Oklahoma and Texas, fished for pearls in the South Seas. All this was profitable. Then, I turned around and spent most of it on that batch of worthless paper."

Linstedt for 35 years has been a world wanderer. He left Worcester fifteen years ago for the last time. That was his birthplace.

Play Your Own Game

He has sailed on the White Star Liner Celtic for Europe, where he expects to become one of the thousands of exportriated Americans who flod Paris in the summer and the Riveria in winter.

"The only way to have money is to save it," he warned at parting. "To make big money one must take chances. But don't take chances on the other fellow's game. Play your own."

ONE ounce of bathing suit is all the covering Dolores Newman requires when she poses for her photograph. She is the winner of the beauty title "Miss Arlington," and a former member of Earl Carroll's "Vanities." The bag? Oh, yes, that holds the suit and weighs one ounce when doing so. Frances Stuart of Boston is the designer.

EUROPE 'LAND OF LOAFERS,' BARRY FINDS

Ex-Lieutenant-Governor, Back From Pilgrimage, Raps Overseas Neighbors

The season of Summer vacations waned not to the fag end yesterday but not so in Europe, according to former Lieut.-Gov. Edward P. Barry, who returned from a European tour and administered lusty verbal whacks on the neighbors overseas.

According to the ex-Lieutenant-Governor, Europe is engaged en masse in a perpetual vacation.

She is loafing, when she should be working, he said. The men are particularly lazy and most of the fields for instance, are tilled by women.

So farspread has been the influence of the system of doles to unemployed in England and Ireland that a class of professional loafers is fast growing in size.

RAPS PROFITEERING.

"Americans should stay away from Europe until its people have more respect for our friendship and gratitude for our patronage," Attorney Barry advised, this time with reference to profiteering.

"It is astounding that those with whom we were allied in the late war are the first to attempt to take advantage of the traveller, while the Germans that I met everywhere throughout my travels extended nothing but unflagging courtesy," declared the ex-Lieutenant Governor.

According to him the merchants have one price for natives and a higher one for Americans. In Rome, he said, the taxi drivers' overcharges were nothing short of thievery, and every time money was exchanged the hotels or stores trimmed the Americans.

At least 10 per cent. of a traveler's money disappears in exchange. He encountered one cashier on a railroad dining car who made $50 a meal on exchange, and when he reported overcharges of his party to the government inspector, the cashier was discharged on the spot.

DOLES WORK HAVOC.

"In England and Ireland, the system of doles to the unemployed has worked great havoc. One worker told me that he got only a shilling more a week for working than he did for loafing. Ireland is in a particularly depressing state. They are just played out from fighting. It is not the Ireland I knew before the war."

The Boston lawyer was one of the party in the Jesuit pilgrimage to Rome. He was received in audience by the Pope and was deeply impressed by his personality.

"The Pope is the most humble man in Rome, affable, yet magnetic," he declared. "He made a profound impression on everyone, non-Christians included.

"Rome indeed is an eternal city; there can never be another Rome. It is the product of the genius of all ages and all places. It would take a year to faintly compass its treasures and meaning.

PILGRIMS WARNED.

"In going into Italy, the government warned the travellers to beware of pickpockets, but the humor of the situation was that no one pocket of the pilgrims was picked in Europe, but on the dock in New York, before sailing, three members were relieved of every penny they had."

Commenting on the money situation, Mr. Barry said:

"Though the pound of England has returned to par, its purchasing power has not. An American $5 bill will buy twice as much in America as the pound will in Europe. The best money to carry to Europe is a load of five-dollar bills. They are the best money in the world. They are accepted everywhere.

"The traveller is legitimate prey for everyone, so it seems. At every meal, 10 per cent. of the bill was added on to cover gratuities, but despite this at every turn one was solicited for a group contribution for every conceivable service rendered.

10 PER CENT. SALARY TAX PROPOSED FOR FRANCE

Paris, Sept. 12.—The tentative French budget for 1926, submitted by M. Caillaux, finance minister, this afternoon, shows a deficit of 3,400,000,000 francs.

M. Caillaux proposes to budget for expenditures of 36,040,000,000 francs, while he estimates receipts as but 32,600,000,000 francs.

The proposed budget would tax antiques, silverware, jewelry, pearls, diamonds, art objects, tapestries and rare books at the annual rate of one-half of one per cent. of the total value of the article. Married men would be allowed exemption from this taxation to the extent of 20,000 francs and 10,000 francs additional for each dependent person.

The tentative budget proposes a tax of 10 per cent. on salaries, 15 per cent. on industrial profits and 20 per cent. on real estate holdings.

Exemption from these taxes is proposed for married men with families who are earning less than 25,000 francs annually, unless they have sources of income outside of their salaries.

NEW FIRE SIGNAL STATION READY

Boston's new fire alarm signal station in the Fenway, last link in the system that makes the Hub fire-fighting unit the most complete in America, will be dedicated Thursday.

Chief participants in the exercises will be Mayor Curley, Fire Commissioner Glynn, and Frank E. Cabot of the Boston Board of Fire Underwriters.

The new signal station, which takes the fire-signal headquarters from its present hazardous location in Bristol street, is the result of many years of planning.

The ripe and mellow brown of healthful sweetness

CRUNCHY nuts are best when browned and opened by frost. Oven heat browns hot biscuit to crumbly deliciousness. Normal room temperature adds to bananas the mellow brown spots that mean delicious ripeness. Buy them by the dozen. Let them ripen in a bowl or dish. When the last trace of green is gone and the skin is flecked with brown, you can taste the sweet deliciousness that is a really ripe banana.

BANANA MOUSSE

Mix 1 cup sugar and 1 cup water. Bring to boiling point and pour the syrup over 4 eggs, beaten. Cook over hot water unt l thick, stirring constantly. Cool. Fold in 1 pint cream, whipped. Press ripe bananas through sieve to make 1 cup banana pulp. Fold banana pulp into whipped cream mixture. Pour into mold, and adjust cover tightly over waxed paper. Pack in 2 parts ice and 1 part rock salt 4 hours. Unmold on appropriate plate, and garnish with whipped cream and cherries

THRILLS by sea and by land are shown in these two scenes from International Newsreel's "Life's Greatest Thrills." One of the greatest naval disasters in history came when a squadron of United States destroyers went on the rocks at Point Honda, Cal. At bottom, rioting during the revolution in Berlin.

pictures of Sergeant Boss, of the U. S. Flying Force, falling through space from an airplane a distance of 1,500 feet before he opened the parachute that saved him, by a margin of a few seconds from being dashed to pieces. Everyone agreed that it was one of the most remarkable pictures ever taken.

Sergeant Boss became famous overnight, but not one of the millions who were thrilled by the pictures knew how they were taken or by whom. John A. Bockhorst, aviator cameraman of International Newsreel, took them and did almost as nervy a thing and took as much risk as did Boss.

Bockhorst, of course, went up in the airplane with Boss, roughed outside a wonder hop in the narrow confines of the bomb rack, photographed every foot of the descent and his pictures afforded a thrill of unprecedented magnitude to the movie millions.

It is one of the missions of the newsreel cameramen to preserve to the public many of the amazing thrills that never have been left to us in pictures. The newsreel in a decade has taken its place as a source of information and entertainment the like of the importance of [illegible] which [illegible] realize how far [illegible] cameras [illegible] operations have set a [illegible].

The Great War [illegible] the news cameramen met [illegible] to the full, and found [illegible] not waiting. But [illegible] generations [illegible] operation scenes have been preserved. Here life's greatest thrills were enacted day by day, hour by hour.

War and the Camera

Possibly no greater thrill ever came to America than when Woodrow Wilson stood on the battlefields of France and that great army of American youth and energy swept before him on its way to make the world safe for democracy. Even while shells were bursting, while giant cannon were belching death and destruction; while poisonous gases were filling the air, International Newsreel cameramen were preserving in the wake, making a record of these scenes which will live when all who witnessed them have passed away.

International Newsreel cameramen were on the scene, too, when revolution reigned in Moscow, St. Petersburg and Berlin. They were in Tokio when the terrible earthquake and fire laid waste to hundreds of acres and brought death to thousands. If a city is afire, they photograph it with all its thrilling horror.

There are thrills, too, of many other kinds that the newsreel cameramen bring to the public.

The gigantic dirigible the "Los Angeles," the largest ever made, majestically sails across the Atlantic and every detail of her epochal trip is recorded by an International cameraman. Later this same dirigible is hidden behind a screen of smoke, to prove how the navy can defend it from attack and battle, and to provide a thrillingly beautiful picture for International Newsreel.

SCOTLAND FAR TOO BLEAK FOR BRITISH QUEEN

Likely to Return to Buckingham Before the Rest of the Court

AMERICAN GIRL HONORED

Hamlet, in Modern Dress, Big London Success, to Make New York Bow

By GERTRUDE, LADY DECIES, Unversal Service Correspondent.

London, Sept. 12.

THE Queen has been feeling the cold in Scotland very acutely, and already there is some talk of her returning to town before the rest of the court.

Balmoral Castle, situated on the Heights above the Dee, is a wind-swept spot.

In spite of the many improvements on the castle to free it from draughts, there is a good deal of speculation in London as to whether the King's health will allow him to remain in London during the Winter, although it may be taken for granted that unless he is definitely ailing, nothing will induce him to leave London before the Fall season which, it is believed, will be soon after Christmas.

Neither has he any particular liking for continental resorts or Winter cruising.

There is not much doubt that the next few months will again see them in Buckingham Palace.

MR. and Mrs. Wilson Platt of Detroit, who have an apartment at the Savoy for the season for the coming out of their daughter, Pauline, gave a breakfast party on the train the day of the St. Leger race. Their eleven guests included Prince and Princess Liechtenstein, the latter formerly the wealthy Shelagh. Princess Mary and her husband, Viscount Lascelles, went each day to meet the Princess, braving the inclement weather in a most striking waterproof of cherry red.

* * *

IT is on the cards that the much-talked-about modern-dress Hamlet will be seen in New York this Fall. If it continues its great success in London, it will have undoubtedly have made a longer run than any previous Shakespearian production. Hamlet first enters on the stage in a morning suit, then a dinner jacket; Ophelia in very modern short frocks and surprises.

Polonius appears without the traditional beard and with revolvers instead of a dagger.

The lines in the play remain virtually the same, but all the scenery and costumes are of the most modern style.

A Closeup of Florida

Dr. Burbank Sums It Up

Money to be Made--and Lost

By MARY DALE.

THE Florida land boom is the financial topic of the day. Stories of the fortunes made overnight, of millionaires who started on the well-known shoestring five weeks earlier, of laborers living in palaces and eating from gold dinner services are coming up from the South.

Here is a closeup of the situation, a Bostonian's eye-view of the land of overnight millions. Dr. Lily Owen Burbank has just come home from a several months' tour of Florida.

"The trouble with any boom is that wild and wilder stories get about and are literally swallowed whole by the public that isn't on the spot," she says. "But even the Florida land boom has to be taken with a grain of salt. And there's always the question, 'How long will it last?'

Dr. Burbank

"For instance, coming up on the train I was sitting in my section when a little Irishman asked if he and his wife might sit in with me while their berths across the aisle were being made up. His wife was a frightened little woman in a calico dress and rusty hat. They were about 50 years old. Naturally I said yes.

"'I see yer comin' from Florida,' he said. 'I'm hopin' ye've made a lot of money there.'

"'Only a few hundreds here and there,' I told him.

"'Oi'm sorry to hear that,' he said.

"'Oi like to hear of people makin' money here. Oi came down here a few years ago with my old woman, with $10,000. Ah' now we're goin' back to the ould country. We've got $170,000 now an' Oi guess it's all we need.'

"One hundred and seventy thousand dollars!

Some Lose Savings of Years

"That's an instance of the sort of stories you hear. But there are the woebegone tales of the people who came with the savings of years, invested it without a qualm—and lost it to the smooth gentleman who always drifts in the wake of a boom.

"In other words—the great danger is the Get-Rich-Quick Wallingfords of the business—the ones who didn't reform! There's one on practically every street corner and the hotel lobbies are full of them.

"There's been a question in my mind how long it would all last.

William J. Bryan

"My dear lady," Mr. Bryan said, "So long as Florida has her tourist crop—she will never need an industry."

"On thinking that over," Dr. Burbank said reflectively, "I wasn't so certain but that he was right. And yet—I'm not convinced. I probably stand on record as the one person William Jennings Bryan didn't convince—and I am one of his staunchest admirers.

"But to get back. Florida is the playground of the United States. The plantations of oranges and lemons and grapefruits are not large enough to be called industry. They are the result of years of labor and pay only moderately well.

"But for the city real estate investor it's a different thing. Everything there is quick turn-over. A small lot is sold for thirty or forty thousand dollars. The buyer pays down $4,000 to hold it for a month. And before he has to pay the rest he turns it over to someone else for sixty thousand dollars.

$1,000 for a 3-Room Apartment

Hotel rates are exorbitant. A small three-room apartment over a garage, which a friend wanted to take, was $1,000 for a five-month season. Five thousand is the usual charge for the five-month season for an ordinary house.

"One interesting feature I found in Florida is the State Clubs. They are formed by a little nucleus of women—the Maine women, the Massachusetts women, the Oklahoma women, and so on.

"These clubs have done a lot to keep the commercialism of the times down there out of the social side of their lives. They've strictly forbidden all talk of business, especially real estate.

"A woman came to me just before I left Miami. 'I've a nice little investment for you,' she said. 'I want you to buy a small hotel.'

"I laughed. 'I—buy a hotel!' I repeated. 'Just a small one,' she insisted and lowered her voice. 'And I can get it for you for a very good price—$350,000.'

"I stared at her. 'A hundred and eighty thousand!' I exclaimed. 'Why, my dear, if I HAD a hundred and eighty thousand—why should I bother to buy a hotel?'

Why Should She Buy an Hotel?

"Did I make anything in Florida myself? I did buy up a few little pieces here and there in the suburbs, but I sold them out before I left and only profited by a few hundreds. I was studying the situation while I had a vacation; I wasn't down as a business proposition.

"Here is what they call 'the real dope.' There's money to be made in Florida—AND there's money to be lost!

"What Florida needs, however, to establish a firm basis of industry is a race of real men and women.

What Florida Needs Now is Workers

People who have faith in the land and themselves. People who are willing to work and work hard.

"There are tremendous agricultural possibilities there. The Everglades have been drained out by the government and there are miles of splendid acreages for farms and orchards. But it means work."

BEGS TO SEE SON AND HER BROTHER

Lying desperately ill in her home, Mrs. D. W. Gifford, 4 Allen court, has written to the Boston Sunday Advertiser to find the two most dear to her—her son, Daniel, and her brother, William Smith, both missing for some time.

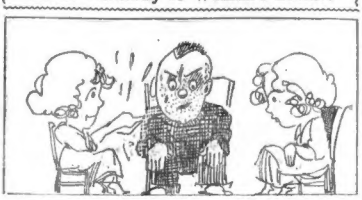
Failing in her efforts to locate her 12-year-old boy, Mrs. Gifford now hopes to locate her brother, whose last known address was 28 Temple street.

The boy disappeared from home August 26. He has not been heard from since. The brother left the Temple street address some months ago.

Any information as to the whereabouts of either will be transmitted to the sick woman if given to the city editor of the Boston Sunday Advertiser, Telephone Liberty 4000.

BURGLAR REFORMED

Listens Earnestly to Woman's Lecture



Bristol, England, Sept. 12.

WHEN a burglar entered the house of Miss Wayne and Miss Kelly at Clevedon, the two women were alarmed, but told him to sit down while they talked to him "For his own good."

The man listened earnestly and when he left told the women that he would not do such a thing again, and added: "Get a dog; someone might come in not so quietly as I did."

N.E. INDUSTRIAL LIFE IS STAKE IN HUB RATE PROBE

Roads Ask 9 to 23 Per Cent. Jump; Whole of East Joins Fight

The question of whether or not New England shall continue to function industrially depends to a great extent on the result of hearings which the Interstate Commerce Commission is giving to shippers and their representatives in New England and other eastern sections.

Four of the hearings, aside from a brief session at Washington recently is scheduled for tomorrow at the Chamber of Commerce.

At this Boston hearing the New England shippers will have their opportunity to set forth reasons why there should be no increase in rates granted the railroads. The hearing comes as a result of the application of lines for rate increases.

If the Interstate Commerce Commission grants the roads' requests it means an increase of from 9 to 23 per cent. in the cost of shipping to New England manufacturers. Any such increase in cost renders it utterly unprofitable for industries in this section to operate for any gain, shippers claim.

HUB LEADS FIGHT.

Failure to operate for gain of necessity means the curtailment of activity which means greatly lessened employment in this section.

Leading the fight against the proposed increased rates is the Boston Chamber of Commerce, with W. H. Day in charge. But Boston is not alone in this fight. New York, the South, and that section of the country east of the Mississippi river, have an interest and have joined New England interests in the fight.

In 1920 the railroads were granted a rate increase which has remained unmolested. Shippers feel that the rates now in effect are sufficient to meet the needs of the railroads. They feel that rather than an increase there should be decreased cost of transportation, but in the event of being unable to get any cut in the tariff they are content to carry on as at present.

New England industries are entirely dependent upon other sections of the country for their raw material. Little is raised or originates here that is essential to the manufacture of any particular article sent out into commerce, it is contended.

ALL DEPEND ON ROADS.

The great cotton mills of Fall River and New Bedford rely on the railroads for their baled cotton, the woolen mills of Lawrence, Lowell and New Hampshire textile cities rely upon the roads for their raw wool. The shoe manufacturing centers rely on the railroad for their hides and leathers.

No other section is so vitally dependent upon rail transportation as is New England, not even New York or the South, hence it is clear that for the hearings before Commissioner Joseph Eastman, himself a New Englander, and his associates, New England feels grave concern. Labor has an interest as great as the industrialists themselves, for Winter in coming and unemployment cannot be met agreeably, it is pointed out.

Hub Sees Amazing Sea Horses

Rare Specimens at Aquarium

By LEE BOYD

WALTER H. CHUTE, director of the outh Boston Aquarium, is justly proud of his place, for he's exceeded in doing what no other aquarium-director in this country hasdone—not only acquired a collection of sea-horses, but kept them alive in captivity.

The new collection of sea-horses is attracting tremendous interest because never before has the public been able to study them at close quarters before.

Walter H. Chute

They are among the most astonishing of amphibians in habits, manner, and appearance.

They look like a conglomeration of horse, eel, fish, and dog. Reading from top to bottom, you see first, the head of Epinard, the body and back fin of a fish, the slender body of an eel below that, and last a long, wavy tail that might belong to a dog.

In a large glass tank in the back of the aquarium they are waving about with their peculiar gait or stroke, coiling on the sandy bottom or clinging with their tails to the bare branches that have been stuck in the sand for them.

Mr. Chute regards them with pride and affection and worries about their diet.

"We got these fish just a short time ago," he said, "from a catch down in Atlantic City. They were found clinging to a fish net and aquarian directors all over the East were notified.

"I took the first train for New Jersey because a catch of sea-horses is an important thing in museum life. The fish themselves aren't so rare, but they're almost impossible to keep alive in tanks and collections die almost immediately in captivity.

Soon Die When Held Captive

I wasn't the only one there and the catch was divided up.

"Seven aquariums took some for the collition—but these are the only ones th have lived through it. I've been ging every possible care and attentic to them because I'd like to havBoston be the first and only museunto have a permanent collection.

"Thesain difficulty is their diet. Most othe other collections would have ied in captivity if the directors hs been able to get the proper food forthem. There's only one bug that they'll eat in captivity, though they'reot so fussy about their diet when they're swimming around in freedor We've made a collection of thisparticular bug just for the sea-horse, and long before the present gervation of bugs is exhausted we expit to have enough ahead to keep u the diet indefinitely."

To Lazy to Swim About

The sea-horses are a lazy lot. They can swim fairly fast by waving their thin, delicate fins, but their favorit means of getting about the tank is by hitching on to other fish by the strong, coiling tails and sticking fast through the subsequent struggle.

Their chief delight is to cling by that ine tail to the twigsy branch of the little trees in their tank ad to wave about with the action f the water. They can stay that wy for hours. In the ocean they s about by clinging to moving seaweed or by riding along on the back of fishes that can't shake them o.

Male Does Domestic Duties

"Sea horses are, I imagine," Mr. Chute explained "among the easet feminists known in their free it's the male who does e the domestic work and the female who gads about away from home. She does lay the eggs, but once hat's over she loses all interest inthe matter and the male has the wrk of hatching them. He carries the eggs around in his pouch until they're hatched, and then he has 6 takes on the job of seeing that they're fed until they're able to fe and care for themselves. The others swim lasily around and look a them curiously once in a while.

Six-Degree Change Is Fatal

"The sea-horses are being nursed along pretty carefully for ting because they must be acclimied gradually. The sudden changefrom the ocean to a tank is enoughto kill them outright if the temperature of the water and the changein diet isn't watched carefully. We have salt water piping in the Boston Aquarium. This makes it easier, of course, because we can keep the fish in their natural habitat.

"But the question of the temperature is a more serious one. The water in a tank is very easily affected by the air, both on the surface ad on the sides by the glass, which conducts the heat or cold of the air to the water quickly. For that reason we have to keep the water at the same degree of cold all the tim. A change of six degrees or so i quite likely to cause their death utright.

"But with the proper care and close watch on the sea-horses I hope to can keep them in our collection indefinitely."

LOCKED UP AS FORGER ON HIS HONEYMOON

Bridegroom Spent Freely With Worthless Checks, Say N. Y. Police

New York, Sept. 13.—Locked up in a police station today was Walter W. Anderson, twenty-one, of Elmira, a bridegroom of less than a week, who was arrested as he was passing his 14th worthless check at the McAlpin Hotel, the authorities say.

His pretty bride, Mrs. Mildred Anderson, whose name before her marriage last Tuesday in Elmira was Fraser, was distractedly trying to summon aid by telegrams.

With her were Mr. and Mrs. J. Boyer, sister and brother-in-law of the bride, who witnessed the wedding ceremony and accompanied the bridal couple on their honeymoon. They are not being detained, nor is Mrs. Anderson, who says she will stand by her husband to the end.

Detective Bean was going through the lobby of the McAlpin on his way to the station when house Detective Dennison stopped him. Dennison pointed out the Andersons who were standing at the cashier's desk trying to cash a check and said:

REMEMBERS HUNCH.

"I don't like his looks. I think I'll tell them not to cash it. Name's Anderson."

Bean went on to the station and less than half an hour later an excited man entered waving two slips of paper and demanding the arrest of one Walter Anderson, who he said defrauded him of $1,700 by passing two worthless checks in payment for jewelry bought in his store a few days ago.

The man explained that he was Leo Paltrowitz, and produced letters from Elmira police describing the nature of the complaint. Bean remembered his conversation with Dennison and let Paltrowitz directly to Anderson, who with his bride were occupying the bridal suite at the McAlpin.

BAGGAGE HELD.

Anderson was arrested, his wife learned he was a forger and she, with her sister and brother-in-law, prepared to leave the hotel, but were stopped by Dennison, who ordered their baggage held for payment of the bill for room and board.

From the story told by Paltrowitz, it seems that Anderson conducted a whirlwind courtship of two months and finally, unable to marry on his limited income, forged his employer's name.

He was employed by W. A. Knox, a manufacturer, of Watertown, N. Y., as assistant cashier, it was said.

WARREN Pershing, son of the General, returns to New York from Paris, where he has been learning automobile manufacture. (Int.)

BROCKTON FAIR OPENS SEPT. 29

Few of the hundreds of thousands of persons who pass through the turnstiles of the Brockton Fair Grounds realize what a big gamble the members of the Brockton Agricultural Society take every year in staging this big outdoor show. Cold weather and rain during the five days and five nights the fair is on would mean the loss of $150,000.

The Brockton Fair this year will open September 29 and close October 3. For fifty-two years the fair has operated without interruption. It has earned millions of dollars, but the profits have gone into enlarging the grounds, buildings and program, to charity and to scholarships for Brockton youngsters seeking higher education.

The management is made up of a score or more millionaires and highly successful merchants, manufacturers and business men. It is a "community family," and each department head labors most of the year trying to perfect his particular part of the show.

This year President Fred Fields and the trustees have combed the globe for something new and thrilling to offer the hundreds of thousands expected to attend the show.

Osgood's Truisms

DOGS IS DOGS

A mongrel cur is a dog, and so is a pedigreed blue ribbon pup.

The difference is in breed and ancestry.

One you can readily trace—look in the book and his history is there—The other? Well, who knows?

Something like that in business—Furniture business especially.

There are firms whose ancestry you can trace—whose records you can follow up, whose reputations you can justify.

Others you can't learn much about—whose names mean nothing because they are not the names of the real owners—names bought, borrowed, coined—names impossible to trace.

Must be some reason!

On the other hand—Here's Osgood's—The name and firm established in 1875—Still under the same ownership and management.

Pioneer credit home-furnishers; not to be confused, ever, with the many "borax" installment houses of mushroom growth and questionable standing.

Making good and keeping faith for more than a half century, in the face of vicious and unfair competition; steadfastly maintaining our leadership.

Can you see what pedigree means?

It is being right in the first place—establishing high ideals, and living up to them.

Three generations of friendly, satisfied customers will tell you that we are that sort. So—

When In Doubt Buy Of Osgood

Right now, so that we can move our warehouse stocks into our big new building, we have cut all prices surprisingly.

Opportunity for you to furnish entire house, spare room, or to buy single pieces, far below prevailing prices.

Terms easily arranged.

Help us to move and we'll help you to save.

A Great Mercantile Establishment

This great structure with its immense acreage of selling floors and mountains of merchandise — are the tangible things that every eye can see.

But real greatness comes from those unseen things that only the heart can feel and the mind appreciate.

There is woven into the fabric of this business sincere ideals and earnest desires of true service to the public.

Service which puts selfish interests far behind the more vital function of meeting the needs of its patrons, that old-fashioned integrity which feels responsible for every purchaser's satisfaction and fulfils that responsibility without stint or measure.

Downing Duplicity in Publicity

I strive to be a devoted apostle of every principle of "Truth in Advertising," laid down by National Advertising Association and so admirably fostered by the Boston Better Business Commission.

Somebody had to take the responsibility and act to set the public aright on the fundamentally soundly-honest principles of Credit Furniture Selling. The results I seek are not unanimous, but they have a wholesome influence.

Summerfield's adherence to Honest Principles will make these yield ever still defiantly serious. Dealing selfish to Square Dealing will continue to redound to the credit of the Satisfactory Store.
